ACADEMY SUPERINTENDENT TO APPEAR ON NATIONAL PUBLIC RADIO

U.S. AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. -- Lt. Gen. Mike Gould, Superintendent, U.S. Air Force Academy, will be featured as a guest on National Public Radio's popular program "Wait Wait...Don't Tell Me!", to be taped at the Pikes Peak Center in Colorado Springs on Thursday night.

General Gould will participate in a segment of the program entitled "Not My Job," during which he will discuss the Air Force Academy and his role as Superintendent with host Peter Sagal. He will then take a quiz consisting of three questions on a topic that is, in all likelihood, unfamiliar to him.

If he gets two of three questions correct, a non-monetary prize will be awarded to a call-in guest. The segment is reputed to be light-hearted and good-natured, with occasional comments made by guest panelists who will include Tom Bodett, Paul Provenza, and Faith Salie on Thursday's show. .

The program is scheduled to air in Colorado Springs on NPR's affiliate station KRCC 91.5 FM on Saturday, May 8 at 11 a.m.

To find out when the show with General Gould will air in their area, listeners outside Colorado Springs can call their local NPR affiliates or check the network's broadcast schedule at <http://www.npr.org/templates/stations/schedule/?prgId=34>.

The U.S. Air Force Academy is located in Colorado Springs, CO, and is a four-year bachelor of science degree university. The academy's mission is to educate, train and inspire men and women to become officers of character motivated to lead the U.S. Air Force in service to our nation. All graduates are commissioned as second lieutenants in the U.S. Air Force. For more information on the Academy, visit www.usafa.af.mil.
